FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Workflow.com to Offer Secure Email Technology from MaxMD

As Embedded Option in EHR and Practice Management Software

Companies Announce Partnership Agreement

FORT LEE, N.J., June 15, 2010 -- MaxMD, a provider of secure web services to providers and healthcare organizations, and Workflow.com, a provider of electronic health records and practice management solutions, announced a partnership agreement under which Workflow.com will offer MaxMD's HIPAA-compliant email and data encryption capability as an embedded technology in workflowEHR® and Workflow.com's other software products. According to Packy Hyland, CEO of at Workflow.com, its resellers will also be able to offer MaxMD technology with Workflow.com products, and its existing customers will have the option to upgrade.

“Studies show that patients want their doctors to use secure email for setting appointments, sending forms and reports, and conducting other communications,” said Hyland. “MaxMD's mdEmail® technology offers the best combination of security, ease-of-use, and seamless integration with our products. Workflow.com solutions with embedded mdEmail provide an outstanding offering to medical offices.”

“Integrating secure communications with EHRs and other medical office applications is consistent with the spirit of ‘meaningful use’ as defined by the government's Health IT Policy Committee,” said Scott Finlay, MaxMD CEO. “In addition to realizing significant savings in time and cost, practices using Workflow.com's solutions and mdEmail will also be able improve outcomes and patient satisfaction. These are the core objectives behind the push for more information technology in providing and administering healthcare.”

Workflow.com products with embedded mdEmail will be available to new and existing customers in July.
